Green Anaconda

Why are an anaconda's eyes on top of its head?

Did you know? With eyes and nostrils high on its head, a green anaconda can look and breathe while most of its body stays underwater. Dark spots help its green body blend into wet vegetation.