Shoebill

Why does a shoebill stand so still?

Did you know? A shoebill waits quietly in marshes until it spots a fish. Then it lunges forward and brings down its broad bill in a quick strike. The waiting is part of the hunt.