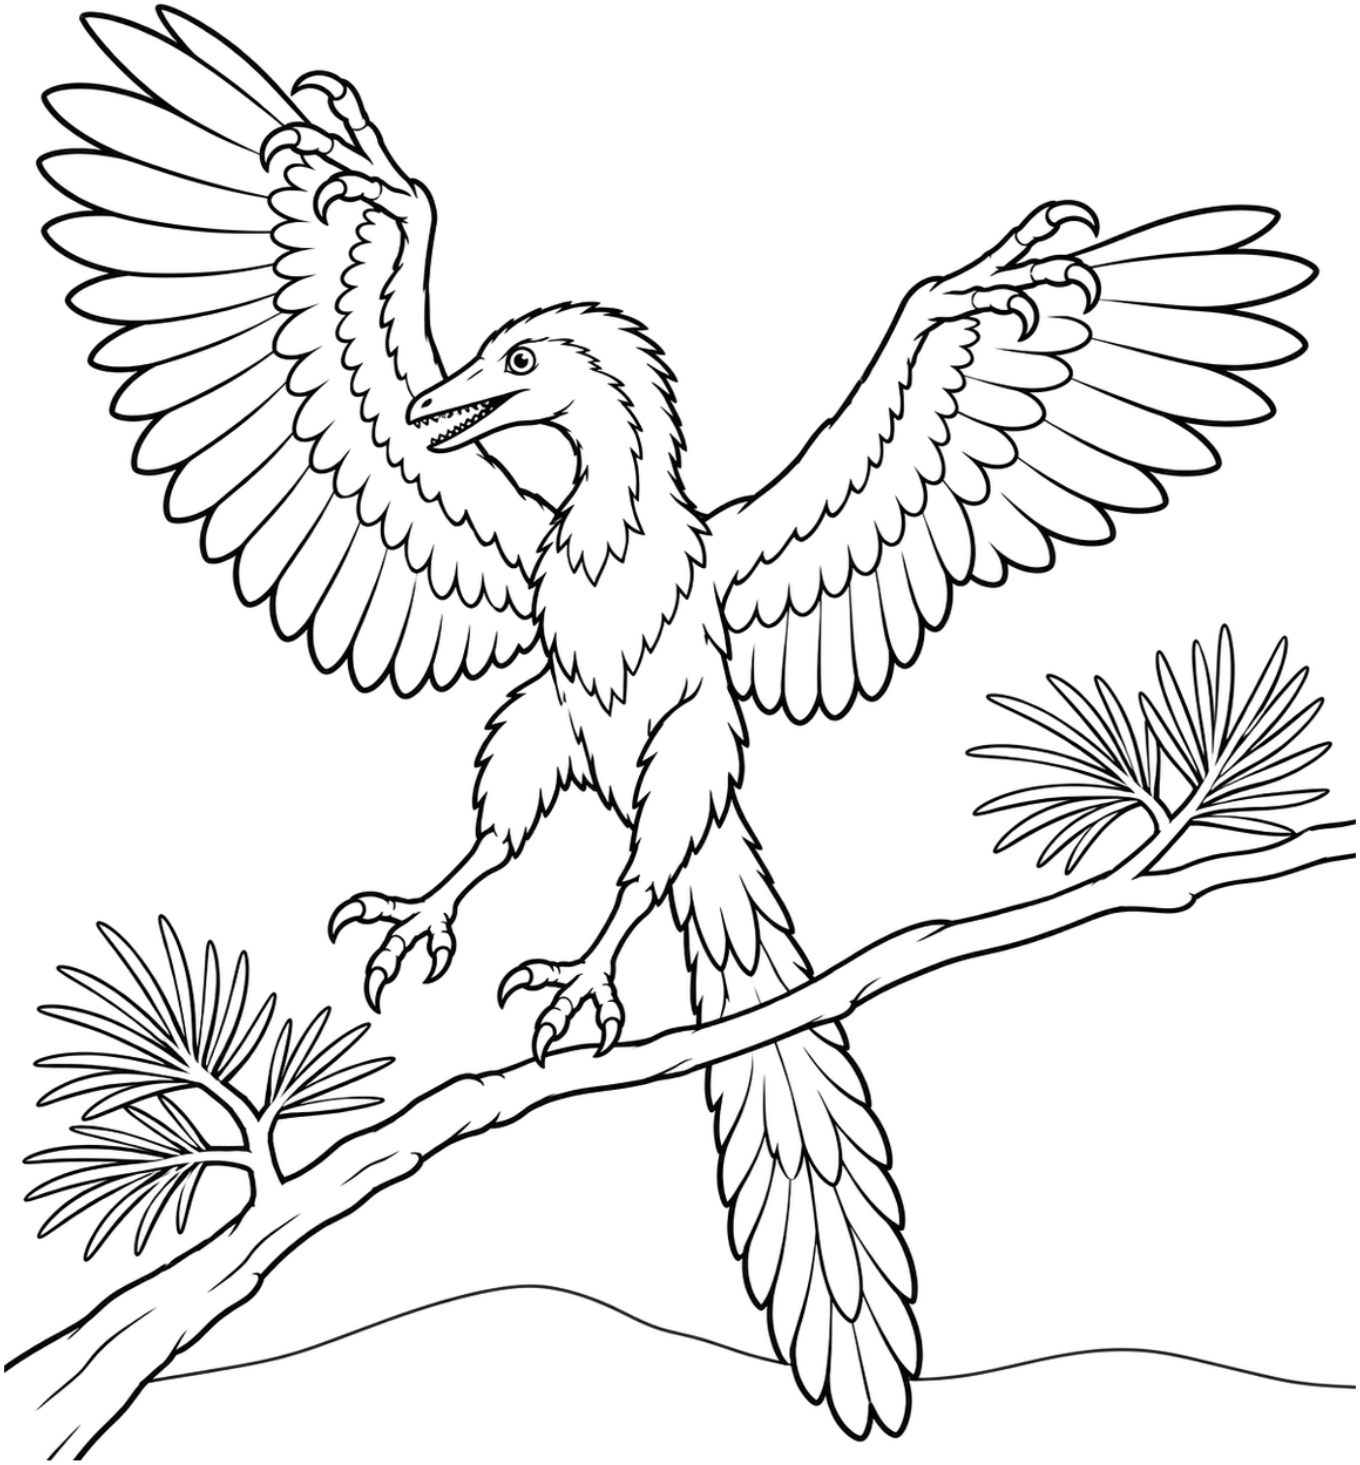
Archaeopteryx

Which clues connect Archaeopteryx to birds?



Did you know? Its fossils preserve long wing feathers, but its jaws had teeth and its tail was a long chain of bones. That mix helped scientists link birds to their dinosaur relatives. Living birds are the descendants of one branch of the dinosaur family.