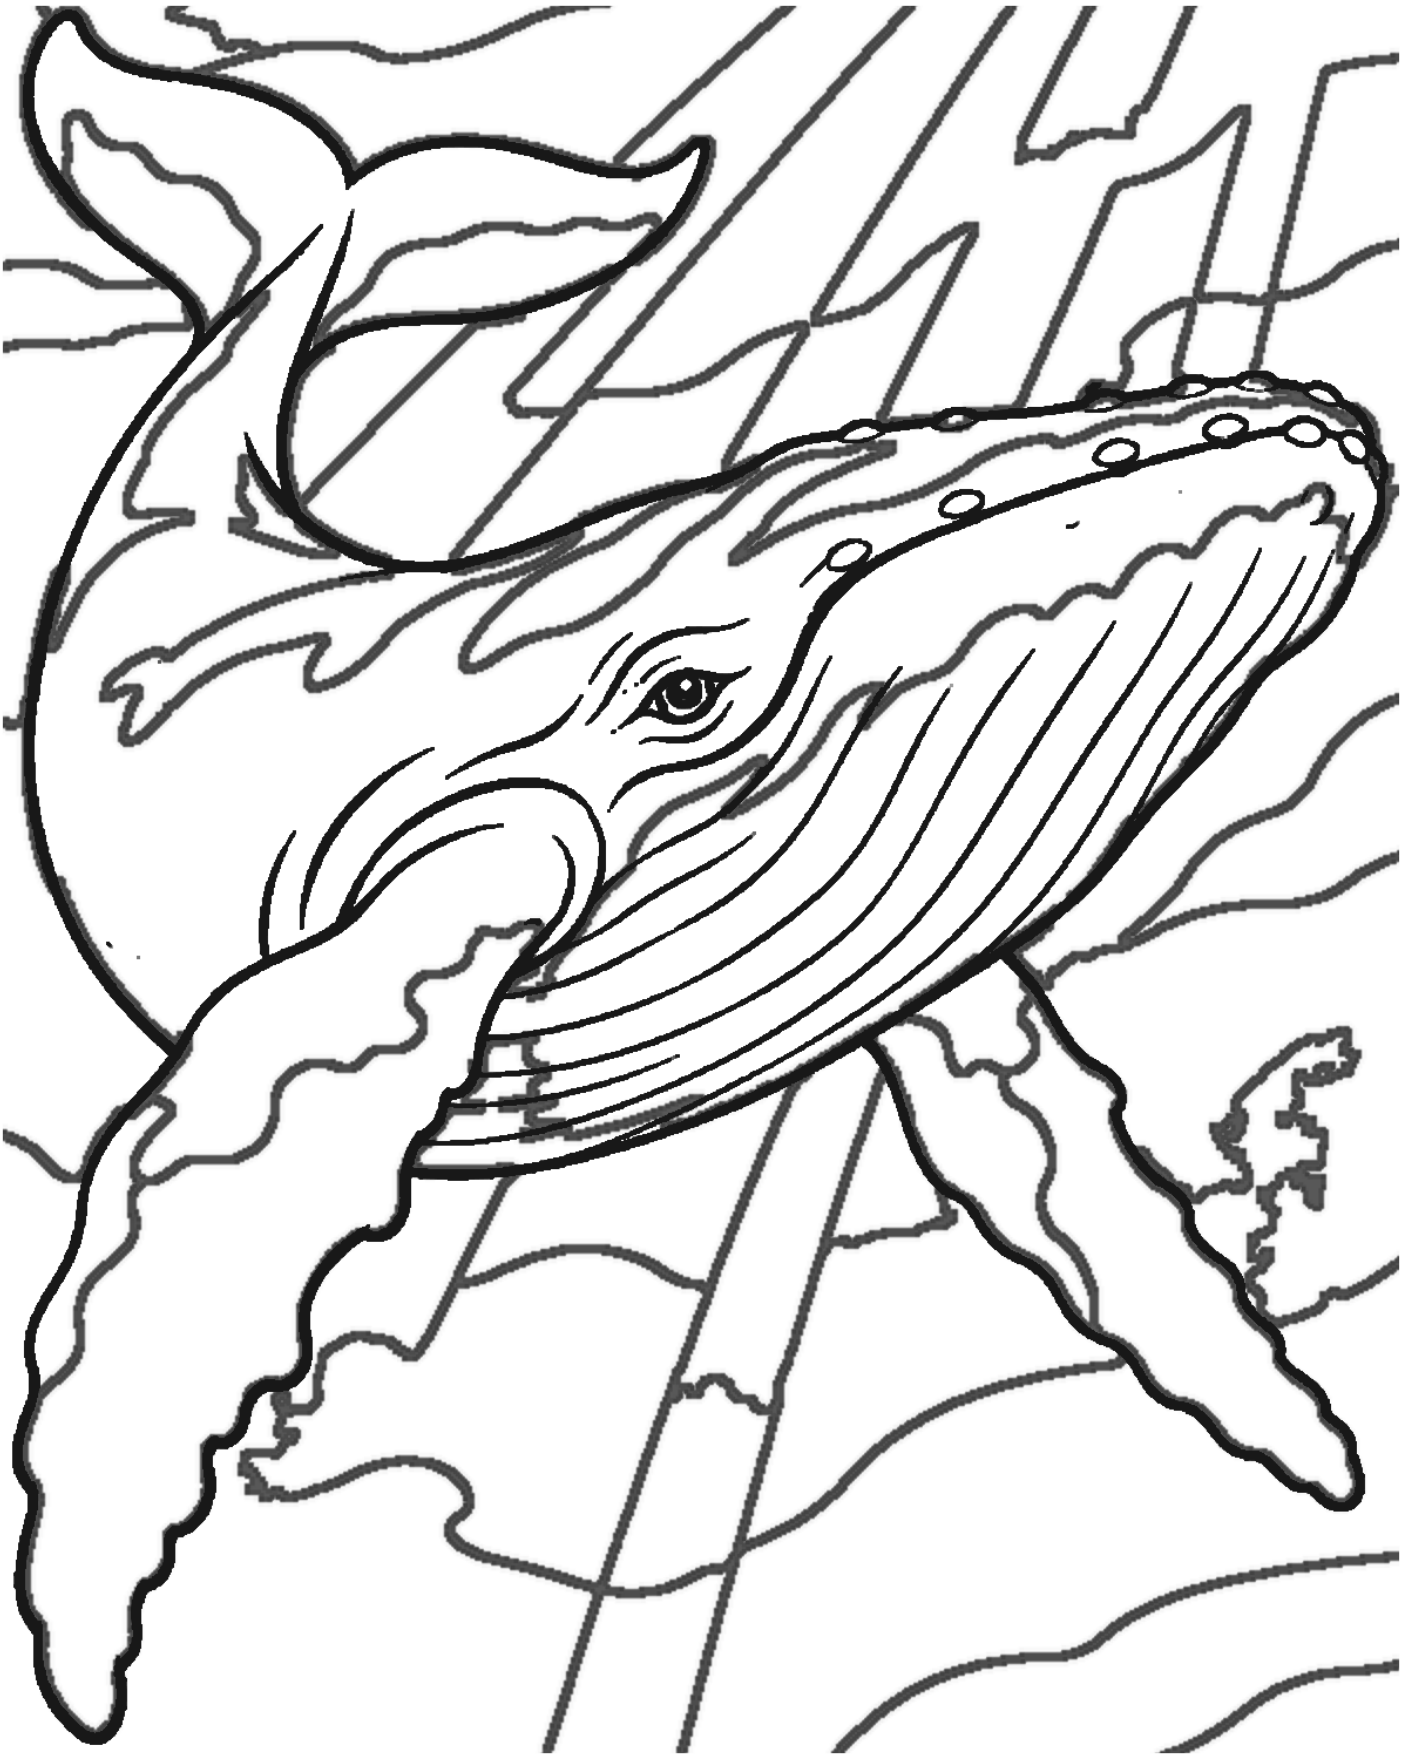
Humpback Whale

Why does a humpback whale have folds under its mouth?



Did you know? The folds let the throat stretch when the whale takes in a big mouthful of water and prey. The whale pushes the water back out through fringed plates called baleen, which catch food inside its mouth.