Crag Goat

How do mountain goats grip steep rocks?

Did you know? A mountain goat has two toes on each hoof. The hard outer edges catch on little ledges, while soft pads press against the rock. This helps the goat keep its footing on slopes that look nearly vertical.