Rain Tree Frog

How can a tree frog hang upside down?

Did you know? The round pads on a tree frog’s toes have tiny flexible structures that fit against the surface of a leaf. A thin layer of mucus helps the pads grip. With those sticky toes, the frog can hold on even underneath the leaf.